8. Approach to Dealing with Customers

In dealing with customer service requests, Council employees will endeavour to provide an end-to-end customer experience which has the customer as its focal point. This means Council staff will place themselves in the position of the customer in responding to issues. Written information, whether in an email, letter or provided on our website will be in a customer friendly, plain English tone.

We will keep the following values in mind when dealing with our customers:

8.1 Respect

We talk to our customers about their individual service needs and listen to what they say. We respond to our customers within defined response times and keep customers informed of the progress of their requests. If we cannot help for any reason, we will explain the reasons why. Decisions and advice will be premised on relevant legislation and Council's administrative procedures and current policies.

Where a frontline staff member is unable to answer an enquiry, every effort will be made to refer the person who can best assist with the enquiry in the most appropriate manner. Where the enquiry cannot be resolved at the time of the visit, details will be taken, and a follow up response will be arranged. 12. Managing Expectations

Not every issue brought to Council's attention is within Council's jurisdiction and Council will not take complaints that are not within Council's power to resolve. Staff will endeavour to direct the customer to the appropriate agency or organisation to deal with the respective issue.

13. Unreasonable Conduct by Customers (UCC)

It is Council's responsibility to treat all customers fairly and with respect. Staff need to show impartiality and professionalism when facing challenging behaviour. This does not mean that staff should tolerate conduct that is threatening, aggressive or abusive.

Parkes Shire Council has a zero tolerance towards any harm, abuse or threats directed towards staff.

13.1 Unreasonable Conduct by Customers

Most of our customers act reasonably and responsibly in their interactions with us, even when they are experiencing high levels of distress, frustration, and anger about their complaint. However, in a small number of cases some customers behave in ways that are inappropriate and unacceptable – despite our best efforts to help them. They are aggressive and/or verbally abusive towards our staff. They threaten harm and violence, bombard our offices with unnecessary and excessive phone calls and emails, make inappropriate demands on our time and our resources and refuse to accept our decisions and recommendations in relation to their complaints.

When customers behave in these ways, we consider their conduct to be 'unreasonable'. Unreasonable conduct by customers ('UCC') is any behaviour which, because of its nature or frequency, raises substantial health, safety, resource or equity issues for our organisation, our staff, other service users and customers or the customer himself/herself.

UCC can be divided into five categories of conduct:

- Unreasonable persistence
- Unreasonable demands
- Unreasonable lack of cooperation
- Unreasonable argument
- Unreasonable behaviours

13.2 Unreasonable Persistence

Unreasonable persistence is continued, incessant and unrelenting conduct by a customer that has a disproportionate and unreasonable impact on staff, services, time, and/or resources.

Some examples of unreasonably persistent behaviour include:

- An unwillingness or inability to accept reasonable and logical explanations including final decisions that have been comprehensively considered and dealt with.
- Persistently contacting Council about the same matter when it has been comprehensively considered and dealt with.
- Reframing a complaint in an effort to get it taken up again
- Bombarding staff/organisation with phone calls, visits, letters, and emails (including cc'd correspondence) after repeatedly being asked not to do so
- Contacting different people within our organisation and/or externally to get a different outcome or more sympathetic response to their complaint - internal and external forum shopping

13.3 Unreasonable Demands

Unreasonable demands are demands (express or implied) that are made by a customer that have a disproportionate and unreasonable impact on Council staff, services, time, and/or resources.

Some examples of unreasonable demands include:

- Issuing instructions and making demands about how we have/should handle their complaint, the priority it was/should be given, or the outcome that was/should be achieved
- Insisting on talking to a senior manager, Director, or the General Manager personally when it is not appropriate or warranted
- Demanding services that are of a nature or scale that Council cannot provide when this has been explained to them repeatedly

13.4 Unreasonable Lack of Cooperation

Unreasonable lack of cooperation is an unwillingness and/or inability by a customer to cooperate with our organisation, staff, or complaints system and processes that results in a disproportionate and unreasonable use of our services, time, and/or resources.

Some examples of unreasonable lack of cooperation include:

- Sending a constant stream of comprehensive and/or disorganised information without clearly
- defining any issues of complaint or explaining how they relate to the core issues being complained about

- Providing little or no detail with a complaint or presenting information in 'drips and drabs
- Refusing to follow or accept our instructions, suggestions, or advice without a clear or justifiable reason for doing so
- Arguing frequently and/or with extreme intensity that a particular solution is the correct one in the face of valid contrary arguments and explanations
- Displaying unhelpful behavior - such as withholding information, acting dishonestly, misquoting others, and so forth

13.5 Unreasonable Arguments

Unreasonable arguments include any arguments that are not based in reason or logic, that are incomprehensible, false, or inflammatory, trivial, or delirious and that disproportionately and unreasonably impact upon Council, staff, services, time, and/or resources. Arguments are unreasonable when they:

- Fail to follow a logical sequence
- Are not supported by any evidence and/or are based on conspiracy theories.
- Lead a customer to reject all other valid and contrary arguments
- Are false, inflammatory, or defamatory

13.6 Unreasonable Behaviour

Unreasonable behaviour is conduct that is unreasonable in all circumstances – regardless of how stressed, angry, or frustrated that a customer is – because it unreasonably compromises the health, safety and security of our staff, other service users or the customer himself/herself. Some examples of unreasonable behaviours include:

- Acts of aggression, verbal abuse and derogatory, racist, or grossly defamatory remarks
- Harassment, intimidation, or physical violence
- Rude, confronting and/or threatening face to face or phone contact or correspondence

14. Dealing with Unreasonable Customers

14.1 Telephone or Face to Face (Counter)

If, in the opinion of any staff member, rude, abusive, or aggressive comments or statements are made in telephone conversations or interviews, the staff members may:

- Warn the customer that if the behavior continues the conversation or interview will be terminated
- Terminate the conversation or interview if rude, abusive, or aggressive behavior continues after a warning has been given
- Activate the duress alarm (if available) and / or call upon a supervisor or the Police as appropriate if there is a perceived threat

Where a conversation or interview is terminated in accordance with this section, the staff member must notify their supervisor and note the details on the Customer's account. If a threat has been made and/or the police have been called, the General Manager or relevant Director must be notified of the details, as soon as possible.

14.2 Correspondence

If in the opinion of the General Manager any correspondence to Council contains personal abuse, inflammatory statements or material clearly intended to intimidate, it will be returned to the sender and not otherwise acted upon.

If in the opinion of the General Manager a customer is constantly raising the same issues the following actions may be taken by the General Manager to notify the customer that only a nominated staff member will deal with them in future and they must make an appointment with that person if they wish to discuss their matter or all future contact with Council must be in writing.

The General Manager shall advise the Mayor of any notification issues in accordance with the above clause and the customer shall be given an opportunity to make representations about Council's proposed course of action.

14.3 Restricting Access to Council Services or Properties

Restricting a customer's access to Council properties or dealing with Council Officers can be made if in the opinion of the General Manager the customer is poses a significant risk for a staff member or other parties because their actions involve one or more of the following types of conduct:

- Acts of aggression, verbal and/or physical abuse, threats of harm, harassment, intimidation, stalking or assault
- Damage to property while on our premises
- Threats with a weapon or common office items that can be used to harm another person or themselves
- Physically preventing a staff member from moving around freely either within their office or during an off-site visit
- Conduct that is otherwise unlawful

In these cases, the customer will be sent a letter notifying them that their access to Council services/properties have been restricted.

The Police may also be notified in these circumstances and charges may be laid.

15. Customers Threatening Self-Harm

Employees and contractors engaged in contact roles may on occasion be confronted by a distressed person threatening suicide or self-harm, either in person, on the telephone or in writing. Such situations can be difficult to handle, especially when most employees are not trained or qualified to assist the person with such related issues.

There are numerous factors which may have influenced or led a person to the point of making such a threat. You must take the threat seriously and you have a duty of care to the distressed individual to, as far as possible and practicable, provide them with the support they need to obtain the professional care and assistance that they need.

The person who was the recipient of the threat should be encouraged to utilise free confidential support and counselling through the Employee Assistance Program (EAP). The EAP is a service that provides employees with confidential and professional counselling and related services to assist them in resolving issues that may be work related or of a personal nature.

Employees and contractors are encouraged to access the EAP service as early as possible.

See HR Policy – Employee Assistance Program for more details

- Do not attempt to counsel the person or make a judgement about whether you think the person will carry out the threat of suicide or self-harm - refer the matter to appropriately qualified personnel at the earliest possible opportunity
